Many of the world's leading organizations are turning to MarketPay to automate their compensation survey data analysis. MarketPay clients purchase the best surveys available and then use MarketPay to build, maintain and analyze their benchmarking databases. We load all of the survey data, and provide training and technical support.

MarketPay — a System that Delivers on its Promise

If you're considering automating market pricing and survey analysis, a handful of providers have systems that you might consider, all of which promise to make your work easier and more productive.

The real difference begins after you sign the contracts. In some cases, that's when a long and arduous process begins for you: defining requirements, building databases, training users, etc. — all of which can take months and months, and all of which must happen before you can use any of the features that you bought the systems for in the first place.

Instant Productivity Improvements

MarketPay clients have a different experience. After subscribing to our On-Line Market Pricing System, you can start using the system for productive and efficient work almost immediately. Our "leave that to us" approach means that your system is up and running and fully functional soon after you've sent us the data used to populate the system. Within a few weeks, your MarketPay System can be up and running, fully loaded with all your survey data, and all of your users trained on the system's features.

Top-Notch Support

At MarketPay, our strengths lie not just in our easy-to-use, high performance market pricing software, but also in the strong team of compensation professionals that supports each implementation. Our staff of highly qualified consultants and practitioners has the expertise and commitment needed to make sure that our system provides the information you need to make better and faster compensation decisions.

Successful Implementations; Check our References

As they say, the proof is in the pudding. MarketPay has built a reputation on our record of successful system implementations (more than 300 active sites). Call a few of our clients as reference checks — and don't let us pick the ones you can talk to, pick for yourself from our full client list. You'll be hard-pressed to find another provider that will let you select reference checks in this fashion, and that might tell you something about your true probability of success with MarketPay versus anyone else.
